

Are Your Children Receiving Enough Milk?

The Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor Says:

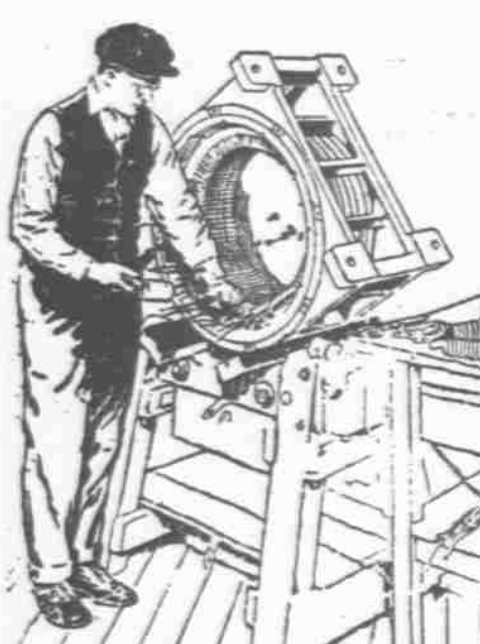

"The babies and little children of Washington are not having enough milk to drink."

"All normal children are better for at least three cups of milk daily, but figures compiled from material gathered by Public Health nurses of Washington show that out of 482 children between 2 and 7 years of age, more than half are receiving no fresh milk to drink at all."

"The lack of milk in a child's diet is liable to have serious consequences. Not only is he deprived of the best of all foods for normal growth and development, but often he receives injurious substitutes in its stead."

Milk furnished by our members is from healthy cows on nearby farms in Maryland and Virginia, and is pure and sweet. Use more of it.

NAVY LEAGUE HEAD ACCUSES DANIELS

Secretary of the Navy Daniels

"committed a gross insult to 300,000 American women who have labored incessantly for the comfort and welfare of the men of the Navy during the war" and slandered the Navy League of the United States, according to Henry Breckinridge, president of the league, who has addressed a letter to Chairman Butler, of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

"The Navy League head takes exception to statements made by Secretary Daniels before the House Naval Affairs Committee some time ago."

Mr. Breckinridge writes that Secretary Daniels "said one thing in person before the committee and then called for the transcript of his remarks, changing the same so as to modify the implication of some of the more gross vulgarities of his verbal statement and padding the same with further matter which he thought might strengthen it and give it an added power of conviction."

A history of the league since its organization in 1902 is given by Mr. Breckinridge. He discusses the war activities of the league at length and tells of the work of the women of the league.

The letter closes with this appeal: "We do petition you, so far as you may be able, to protect us as American citizens from the unjust application of the power of an official of the executive arm of the Government, who by all our tradition is a servant of the people and not a master of the people. When he illegally attempts to deprive us of an equal right to associate with the men of the navy and to visit the ships and institutions of the navy upon the same conditions with other classes of citizens, we ask you, if possible, to restrain him."

PREPARE PLANS FOR PRISONERS' HOME

Several Washington architects are at present working on plans for the new $200,000 home for the Prisoners' Relief Society. It was announced today, and the plans will soon be ready for inspection. President Earl Dudding declared that as his part of the one million dollar fund the society is now asking contributions for, one of the architects has volunteered to prepare a set of plans free of charge.

The location of the new home will be in the vicinity of Rock Creek Park. President Dudding declared, and will have accommodations for some fifty ex-convicts in poor health. These men must first be put in good physical condition before the society can get them positions. It is also planned to have all the offices in the building to better the co-ordination of the work.

It was declared that there is a possibility that the ground for the new building will be donated as part of the fund, and part of the building material has been promised in like manner by persons who see the importance of the society's work.

The society plans also to buy its present premises, 509 E street northwest from the million dollar fund, and any contributions may be sent to the treasurer at that address.

BELASCO.

"He and She," a new play by Rachel Crothers, debuted before an appreciative audience last night at the Shubert-Belasco.

THE CAST.
Guido.....John Kirkpatrick
Kath.....Saxon King
Tom Herford.....Cyril Keightley
Ann Herford.....Rachel Crothers
Daisy Herford.....Vivian Johnson
Millicent.....Faire Binney
Ruth Creel.....Ethel Cozens
Dr. Remington.....Albert Brumm
Ellen.....Carrie Lowe

Should a woman sacrifice her artistic ability, her heaven-sent desire to stand out before admiring throngs acclaiming her for the children of her hand and brain, or should she sacrifice her own flesh and blood?—that is the theme of "He and She." No answer is vouchsafed, for where Ann Herford stifles her artistic creative instinct to guard and protect her sixteen-year-old daughter, Millicent, Ruth Creel gives up the man she loves, to pursue her career as a magazine editor. The same play offers both decisions. You may take your choice.

Tom Herford and his wife, Ann, are sculptors, both candidates for the same commission. Ann wins and decides to give up her entire summer to work on a frieze for which she is to receive $100,000. There is much talk of the dignity of work as such, of the right of a woman to work beside her husband, the "work" being of an artistic nature, such as drawing or sculpture or writing up-lift articles for a magazine.

And then comes the cause for immediate decision. True, Ann is rather upset by her husband's announced unwillingness to "touch a penny of her $100,000," but when Millicent comes home and says she will never, never go back to school, she intends to be married soon to the driver of the seminary motor, who owns such wonderful eyes and long, wavy hair. Ann suddenly discovers that it will be either the $100,000 frieze and admiring throngs or a possible lost daughter.

Albert Brumm, as Dr. Remington, Ann's father, provides the safe and sane moralizings in an effective manner. Indeed, he is most human throughout. Cyril Keightley, as Tom Herford, handles a rather thankless part acceptably.

Rachel Crothers is Ann Herford. Her best work is in the final act, when she finds out that the man she loves is married to the driver of the seminary motor. To audiences fed up on modern bedroom scenes, etc., that confession is unsatisfying, but nevertheless it is convincing.

There are so many women in the world today with just such longings as those of Ann and Ruth that "He and She" should not lack for admirers, especially since there are also so many, many more like Daisy Herford, who is so old-fashioned and practical that she admits right out to the public that she cannot have a husband and a home with children. And the last seen of her she is about to succeed.

B. F. KEITH'S.

It's a sort of a family affair again at B. F. Keith's Theater this week, with the inimitable Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry and Mr. and Mrs. Pat

Rooney—beg pardon, Marion Bent—getting the major applause on a bill that quite measures up to the Keith standard.

Washington first sighters were in a happy mood last night to receive the comedy which the firm of Barry, Rooney, Bent, et al., distributed through a solid hour of laughter. The comedy was by far the best of the kind that they can walk fast, wound up the bill with the walking competition after Pat Rooney and Jimmie Barry had put the audience in convulsions by staging a burlesque of the match.

The last time the Rooney combination was here Miss Marion Bent, the boss of the household—Pat admitted it last night—was in and Pat had to face the music alone. This time she's back, dancing to perfection, and the pair was gratefully received.

They followed Mr. and Mrs. Barry with "The Rub" better than this time than ever before. This time it is the town dude, city-broke, who writes a mash note to an actress. It is last night's better to see it.

Ciccolini, the Italian, whom Mme. Melba called the world's greatest tenor, is singing better than on the occasion of his last appearance, although his renditions last night were slightly marred by a cold. By request he gave "Dear Old Pal o' Mine," after "Until," which won continued applause. Ciccolini's voice is strong and full and his cadence unerring. He was billed as the "principal tenor of the Chicago Grand Opera Company," but vaudeville wins what the opera loses during the summer season.

Josh Dale and Sam Lazar, two Ethiopian comedians, score a hit in "Joining the Union." Josh stutters and Sam puts on airs. These attributes and an unbroken bow provide the way for many a laugh.

Ernest Evans, head of a company of four beautiful girls, can well afford to laugh at liars. He's just out of the service, but most any one in authority would be the winner by swapping places with him for just an hour. The dancer with Mr. Evans' partner is unusually graceful, pretty and graceful alone, she would even have carried away honors. Kharum, the Persian pianist, tickles the nerves in no uncertain fashion. He took four bows and two encores. The audience wanted more. Apple's Zoological Circus opened the show. Four bears, eight dogs, three monkeys and one anteater stage a small show by themselves. It was an excellent number.

Variety and excellence are the two factors that serve to make this week's offering a sure fire hit.

GREAT FALLS PARK.

Free dancing, free concerts by the Ladies' Victory Orchestra and free motion pictures are features of the entertainment to be enjoyed at picturesque Great Falls Park. Excellent fishing records continue to be made. All this week there are many picnic parties to be held here.

The illumination of the falls at night by vari-colored electric lights continues to be a feature.

Electric trains for the falls leave the terminal at Thirty-sixth and M streets northwest at frequent intervals.

TO DRIVE FOR VOTE ON SCHOOL BOARD

Delegates representing 200,000 members of twenty-four civic organizations will meet tomorrow night in the rooms of the Board of Trade to further the campaign for obtaining an elective school board for the District.

Roy C. Claffin, chairman of the Board of Trade's committee on public schools, will preside.

It is expected that the delegates will organize themselves as a joint committee and start an active campaign at once. A steering committee of seven will probably be created to summarize the ideas of the various organizations for incorporation into a bill to be presented to Congress.

According to Mr. Claffin a survey of the school systems of all important cities in the country shows that 75 per cent of them elect their boards of education by popular vote, while in only 7 per cent of the cities are they appointed by the courts.

Mr. Claffin declared that this campaign for an elective school board was not started as a result of any controversy in which the present Board of Education is involved, but as a result of the widespread conviction that the system itself is wrong.

CONGRESSMEN ASK CLERKS' PAY BOOST

After five hours' debate, the House yesterday passed a joint resolution by Congressman Wood of Indiana, providing that two clerks, or secretaries, be designated by each member and that their names be put on the roll of House employees.

In the past, each member has been given $3,200 annually for clerk hire. He apportioned it as he saw fit. Some kept much of it in their families by appointing relatives.

The resolution, if concurred in by the Senate, will mean that $1,000,000 in salaries and $208,500 in bonuses will be paid directly to the clerks and secretaries.

Had the House passed an amendment giving the member the right to pay the entire $3,200 to a high class secretary, the secretary would not receive the $240 bonus, since the bonus is only for employees receiving $2,000 or less. By naming two clerks, one to receive $2,000 and the other $1,200, each will receive the bonus, making a total for clerk hire in each member's office $3,650.

I. W. W. FOE TO BE AIDE TO PALMER

Frank L. Nebeker, of Salt Lake City, foe of I. W. W. agitators, has been nominated as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the public lands division of the Department of Justice. The nomination was sent to the Senate today.

Mr. Nebeker conducted the prosecution and obtained the conviction of I. W. W. leaders before Federal Judge Landis in Chicago last year. He was born in Laketown, Utah, in 1870, and has been prominent in Democratic politics of that State. He was a member of the Democratic national committee from 1908 to 1916 and was special assistant to the Attorney General in charge of the prosecution of I. W. W. agitators. He succeeds Francis J. Kearful, who has resigned to resume practice of law.

WELCOME

—to the Beaches and Breakers of the New Jersey Coast!

To the inland dweller, summer days by the sea are most desirable. They mean, not only just the needed climatic change, but a complete get away from the scenes and activities of everyday life. They mean the refreshing tang of cool, salt air; foaming waves breaking on white, sandy beaches; gay, pleasure-seeking throngs; surf-bathing, sailing, sea-fishing; great hotels, whose broad verandas look across the ocean to Europe and down on the moving, colorful, human panorama of American life on parade on the fascinating Boardwalks.

There are forty such resorts on the coast of New Jersey, from Atlantic City and Cape May north to Sandy Hook and New York Bay—Wildwood, Ocean City, Beach Haven, Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, Long Branch—many of them world-famous, each just a little different from the other; all of them with a single purpose—to make summer days by the sea Play Days, and helpful days of delight to the millions who live inland.

There's room and a welcome for all! Accommodations to meet any purse.

30,000 YANKS GET VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Replying to charges by Senator King of Utah that only 150 disabled soldiers had been enabled to obtain training from the Federal Board for Vocational Training because its appropriation has been gobbled up for administrative expenses, Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia has collected evidence to show that the cases of over 30,000 men are receiving the attention of the board.

Senator King charged that 300 men were employed to look after the 150 injured soldiers claimed to have been the only beneficiaries.

Declaring this to be "unjust criticism," Senator Smith showed that the 300 employees were not giving their time to 150 soldiers, but that the facts show that 1,365 disabled soldiers actually had been assigned to occupations or schools on March 1. In addition, he said, the 150 were receiving care and study at that time.

Senator Smith declared that these 1,365 cases represented men not found to require exclusive training, and were not included in figures embracing the statement that only 150 men were receiving exclusive training.

"Places had been found for them, where," said Senator Smith, "despite their physical injuries, they were capable of taking up lines of work where they could progress in capacity as the work itself was done. The 150 were assigned to schools where they were receiving training for work into which they subsequently were to enter."

Relief Truck and Engine Company Hold Annual Excursion on Thursday.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 24.—The members of the relief truck and engine company, No. 1, will give their annual excursion to Marshall Hall on Thursday.

Final decrees for divorce have been granted by Judge Louis C. Barley in the suits of Samuel Harrington against Minnie L. B. Harrington and Malvina Tolson Marsh against Addison Hall Marsh.

Ernest L. Herbert and others have sold to William H. Washington and wife a lot on the south side of Pitt street, between Gibson and Wilkes streets. J. Ernest Hamilton has purchased from Anna Elizabeth Hamilton a house and lot on the north side of Wolfe street, between Fairfax and Lee streets.

The Lee School Recreational Club with headquarters at the Lee school, membership of eighty-eight, Mrs. Hayden is the leader, Miss Inez Simpson the president, and Miss Louise Barnhouse the secretary and treasurer.

77H STREET CALLED "BOOLEG BEDLAM"

Charging that inadequate police patrolling of certain sections of Seventh street has made this street one of the most disorderly in the city, the Midcity Citizens' Association, at its monthly meeting last night, appointed a committee of five to lay their plea before the Commissioners of the District to have the street cleaned up.

It was declared in the meeting that automobiles are allowed to park for any length of time in many places, and that the tooting of horns and claxons on passing and standing machines together with the unbridled use of glaring headlights, keeps the quieter element of the residents from sleeping at night.

The committee is composed of business men who live in the neighborhood, many on Seventh street, above their places of business, and is headed by Charles S. Shreve. Henry J. Gompers, son of the labor leader, declares that the vicinity of Eighth and N streets, where he lives, is just as bad. He claimed that the police make no effort to quiet the boisterousness of the night revelers, and that a building in the neighborhood, a center of fighting and disturbance, is often visited by policemen themselves.

Members of the association declare that loud singing, fighting, and street brawling are carried on all night at times. They say the rougher element of the city comes to that part to spend the gains of their bootlegging expeditions.

The chief centers of disturbance seem to be on New York avenue and N street, it was said.

The association took up the question of street railways. A resolution endorsing the proposed zone system was unanimously voted down.

The committee on public schools took up a proposition to urge upon the Commissioners the appointment of 62 additional teachers in the city's schools, in order to relieve principals of some of the class work so that they may have more time for supervisory work.

A resolution urging Congress to purchase Mt. Vernon for the people was adopted. This plan carries the appropriation of sufficient money to maintain the Washington home in order that no admission to grounds or dock be charged.

WORLD WAR VETERANS ASK CONGRESS' SANCTION

A resolution, providing for incorporation by Congress of the World War Veterans, was introduced in the House today by Congressman Henry L. Emerson of Ohio. The resolution carries the names of the officers of the organization as follows:

President, Irwin Greenberg; first vice president, M. E. DeGroot; second vice president, Ivan Waynick; treasurer, Reed Finley; financial secretary, Charles E. Oger, Jr.; recording secretary, J. A. La Tour.
